

Notice at Collection for California Residents

Last reviewed: January 20, 2026

CompanAI, Inc. is collecting your personal information and sensitive personal information to provide and operate the CompanAI app, including for account creation and management, customer support, security, fraud prevention, payment processing, and to improve our services. If you choose to upload information about your pets (such as veterinary records, lab results, notes, and other health-related information), we use it to provide app features (e.g., timeline, insights, reminders, and recommendations).

We may sell the categories of personal information or sensitive personal information we collect or share it with third parties for cross-context behavioral advertising, as indicated in the chart below. To opt-out of personal information sales or sharing, email support@companai.ai.

Optional research & product-improvement program: Unless you opt-out, we may de-identify and aggregate certain personal information or sensitive personal information (including pet health information and app usage data). We may use de-identified, aggregated data internally and may disclose or monetize it with research or commercial partners. You can opt out of this optional program at any time in the app settings or by email support@companai.ai.

You can withdraw from the optional research & product-improvement program at any time. If you withdraw, we will stop using newly collected pet information for that program going forward. De-identified and aggregated data created before your withdrawal may be retained and used because it is no longer linked to you.
